

“MADAGASCAR: LEMURS AND SPIES”

The Biology Department will present an inspirational new video exploring the biology and politics of wildlife conservation, along with a conversation with a local veterinarian who is part of this effort.

Dr. Bobby Schopler, Staff Veterinarian at the Duke Lemur Center, will screen the video and tell us about his recent trip to Madagascar to participate in the video.

Dr. Bobby Schopler
Staff Veterinarian at the Duke Lemur Center

Madagascar: Lemurs and Spies explores the link between luxury goods in the First World and the plight of animals, such as the silky sifaka, in developing countries.

Monday,
March 26, 2012
7:00 p.m.
201 Coker Hall

Come and join us!